WEST SACRAMENTO, CA – Is your bobble-head collection missing a critical piece? The California Correction Peace Officers Association (CCPOA) may have just what you need. In response to popular demand, CCPOA today announced an auction for the sale of the Meg Whitman bobble-head doll and related items from its popular “Meg for Meg” campaign video.

“With over 100,000 viewings so far, ‘Meg for Meg’ has gone viral,” said CCPOA spokesman JeVaughn Baker. “With the incredible popularity of the video, we decided to give fans a chance to buy the actual bobble-head. They get a piece of political history and the money goes to help those in need,” Baker said.

The auction will be held on eBay tomorrow Friday, October 22 at noon and ends at noon on Monday, November 1st. To bid on the “Meg For Meg” bobble-head, go to <http://www.megformeg.com/auction> or search “bobble-head meg” at www.ebay.com.

“Everyone has a chance to bid and try to win the bobble-head, but if someone wants it badly enough, we have established the “Meg Whitman - Buy It Now” option for the popular price of $140 million,” said Baker.

All auction proceeds to benefit the California Victim Compensation Fund, a state program which provides cash assistance to victims of crime in California.
